What, if anything, could have made the workshop more useful for you?

I would have appreciated written closed captions since the presenters spoke quickly at times. I think this would improve accessibility. The session was geared towards undergrad students, I understand, but I would have appreciated some more information about graduate students too as that as part of the student and recent grad definition.

A discussion about mid-career people transitioning to federal service. How old is too old for those with lots of experience?

It's not about what the panelist want to say, its about what the attendees want to hear and learn. More time should have been allocated to those with real-world questions. I teach my students about USAJobs once a semester and I had 2 questions, but there was no time to ask. My virtual hand was raised for 9 minutes… These types of meetings only tick the box for the departments hosting it and offer very little real-world benefits to the rest of us. Best of luck.

Having someone who participated in a federal government program speak about their experience.

I'm not a citizen but on my way to citizenship, I didn't know even internships would require citizenship and I wish this was brought up at the beginning of the session if it was shorter. it was a lot of information at once that just seemed to all blend in together at the end.

Talk more about opportunities for national guard or reserve members

Please share any additional comments:

as a first-generation student, I appreciate sessions like this to help guide my career search!

Thank you so much for sharing so many resources with us!

The presentation was interesting and entertaining.

Thank you for this helpful information and spending your time to help us with this process.

Great webinar! Thank you.

The resources thar were shared are incredibly useful.

Hi Team! This is Harper from NYU Wagner. This info session is really impressive and Yeni shared many helpful insights. I would like to apply for internships directly with your organization. I am a policy analysis student and interned in UNICEF China. I notes that there is a location requirement in DC. Is it possible to work remotely in NewYork? Hope to get back from you. My email: hw3315@nyu.edu   . Best, Harper

Very practical advise, spoken from shared experiences, lots of important information and above all the motivation that was in the tone of encouragement.

I got a lot of useful information and resources.

Increase the time limit. This was a waste of time. If you know you will speak for an hour, allocate another hour to Q&A. Afterall, you are the experts that we want to learn from.

Excellent information session

Great resource and info session. The alumni were great to hear from and the stats on percentage of employees under 30 in federal gov and who have option to retire reinforced the need and want for more talent. Thank you Yeni Simon for sharing so many links and helpful resources.

Loved the guest speakers! We'll organized and efficient use of time - thank you!

Found this webinar on majors listserv

My only complaint is that we didn't have more time to answer questions, the resources you've offered look great!

Lots of great info!

missing accessibility ie no paper copies of presentations

The speakers were very knowledgeable. I really appreciated that they were transparent about how difficult USA jobs can be. The resources they discussed made me excited.

Being walked through USAJOBS and the resume portion was incredibly helpful!

Thank you!

Yeni was very informative and helpful with recommendations in many different areas. Brunt opened my eyes to the many different areas that you can work in within the Federal Government. Great presentation all around!

Love all the resources

The sound cut out towards the end but came back.

I would like to see more information on the conversion rate of interns that convert into civil servants.

I'm very pleased with all of the information and resources available.

Fab team of presenters.

I really liked the presentation. I felt like all the information was clearly displayed and explained. I also really appreciated the QR codes, websites, and specific examples. I was unsure about how to get involved in our government and find internships, but this answered all of those questions perfectly. Thank You!

I thought they put together a very nice program, and made it applicable for all students. I appreciated getting to learn about the opportunities that are out there with the government.

Great job!

A lot of helpful information for someone to get into the federal government

More about working with go government

The speakers were great and resourceful!

Everyone was so helpful and friendly
